CPYRGHT :

Bomber Trial

Count's Letters to Wife Ruled Inadmissible

count told his wife that there husband and wife. Judge Henderwould be a $739,910 profit on the son skirted the problem by ruling sale of some World War II type they were not significantly connected with the government's inadmissible evidence Tuesday in case. the Federal Court conspiracy trial of two men.

out three letters between Count and that there would be a $739,910 profit to be split three ways. "He marin and his wife after hearing was just telling her the prospects arguments from U.S. Atty. John T. Curtin and Edward Brodsky of New York City, attorney for de Montmarin.

The Paris businessman is on trial with John R. Hawke, 28year-old pilot from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., on charges of conspiring to violate the Munitions Control Act. Seven of the twinengined attack bombers actually were exported, the government says.

nimself making an early-appearance on the stand.

The letters, taken by Customs Helms, agents from a black leather bag Curti n the possession of de Montmarin at the time of his arrest in Sep-ember, 1965, were described by Curtin as business letters in which ie Montmarin asked his wife to act as his agent in dealings with European businessmen in connecion with the bomber deal.

Not Connected With Case

Brodsky argued they were pri- ing for the government, which a French vileged communications between

In one letter, de Montmarin told his wife the Portugese were pay-Judge John O. Henderson ruled ing $1.5-million for the airplanes was just telling her the prospects for the future as a man might," Judge Henderson said at one point in the argument.

With the letters ruled out, Curtin decided not to call the two Customs men who seized them. He said he "might" have one more witness for today.

Meanwhile, the question of whether Central Intelligence Agency officials will testify in the trial remained open.

The trial went into its third week Tuesday and the government and past CIA deputy director s expected to conclude its case Richard Bissell were subpoenaed today, possibly after calling one at the request of Edwin Marger more witness. The defense is then of Miami Beach, Fla., attorney expected to take over with Hawke for Hawke. Marger said he would for Hawke. Marger said he would accept CIA General Counsel Lawrence R. Houston in place of > Curtin moved Tuesday to quash the subpoena for Bissell and that part of the subpoena for Helm which directs him to bring documents relating the case. Arguments on the motion have not been presented.

Marger claims the CIA secretly approved the bomber exports and that Hawke thought he was work-